

LAUNCH CONTENT CHECKLIST

Seven things a product launch needs before day one. Tick what you have. Whatever is left is your brief.

-
- ☐ A hero film
Ten to fifteen seconds that make someone want the product with the sound off. Everything else in the launch is cut from it. Ask for: 9:16 master, with and without text.
-
- ☐ Listing stills
Clean pack shots on a plain ground for your site, marketplaces and quick commerce. Boring, and the images that actually sell. Ask for: front, angle, scale shot, in-hand.
-
- ☐ Every format
The same film in vertical, square and wide. Remaking an ad because it does not fit a placement is the most common launch-week panic. Ask for: 9:16, 1:1, 16:9 from day one.
-
- ☐ A page that matches
The ad makes a promise. The page they land on has to look like the same brand and say the same thing, or the click is wasted. Check: same colours, same headline, one button.
-
- ☐ Launch week, ready
Teaser, launch, proof, how to buy, reminder. Five posts written and designed before day one, not the night before. Ask for: captions and covers with the files.
-
- ☐ Three hooks
One product, three different opening lines. You will not guess which one works, so let the ads tell you in the first week. Ask for: same film, three first-two-seconds.
-
- ☐ One visual system
Colours, type and layout rules written down once. It is why some launches look like a brand and others look like ten freelancers. Ask for: a one-page style sheet.
-

4 WEEKS OUT

Visual system agreed. Film brief sent. Pack artwork final. Landing page started.

2 WEEKS OUT

Hero film approved. Listing stills done. All formats exported. Three hooks cut.

LAUNCH WEEK

Five posts scheduled. Page live and matching. Ads running on all three hooks. Check results on day three.